Structure, Governance and Management

Legal Status

Daedalus Theatre Company was registered as a company limited by guarantee on 13th July 2010. The trustees adopted new Articles of Association commensurate with charitable status on 30th June 2014, and the company became a registered charity on 20th May 2015. Both processes were overseen by the Independent Theatres Council, of which Daedalus Theatre Company is a member.

New trustees are appointed by the existing trustees; in selecting persons to be appointed, the trustees take into account the contribution that each potential trustee is able to make to the pursuit of the objects or the management of the Charity.

Objectives and Activities

The stated objects of the charity are "to advance education for the public benefit by the promotion of the arts, in particular but not exclusively the art of drama."

The company was set up to create sociallyengaged, research based theatre work. We do this through creating professional performances and participative community projects – always dealing with issues of public interest.

Our activities comprise the following: public performances, workshops, opportunities for discussion and ideas-sharing.

The performances we present are not conventional drama, although they are mainly rooted in theatrical practice: the most frequent format is "documentary theatre", created by the company during rehearsals using research on a particular theme. This provides public benefit by enabling audiences to expand their horizons and explore a variety of issues. We are very careful about how we engage audiences: we aim to create situations that are empowering, such as inviting the audience to eat with us, or having seating layouts that make audiences feel central to the event.

The workshops and opportunities for discussion and ideas-sharing are often based around bridge-building activities such as a reading group and cross-cultural storytelling, as well as events where members of the public and professionals can share their artistic work and ideas. These events are kept free of charge whenever possible. Such events provide public benefit by addressing gaps in cultural understanding by bridge-building between communities, enabling the sharing of skills and supporting self-confidence and articulacy. We are particularly focused on language skills, specifically in giving confidence in English to non-native speakers resident in the UK through the process of using their own words to shape and then tell a story, and listening to others engaging in the same process. The result is of benefit to the wider community as well as to the individual participants since better communication skills lead to greater social cohesion. This is especially relevant in places with multiple immigrant communities, like East London where we are based.

We present many of our activities at non-arts venues in order to reach a wider public, as well as working with arts venues that have a strong community commitment. We also work with partner organisations from outside the arts world to expand our activities and reach new audiences, whether local community groups, as in East London, special interest groups like Amnesty International members, or simply a new geographical area.

Our work also involves informal research into good professional practice and the testing of new techniques and approaches for the furtherance of our aims, and this has led to some academic interest in our output.

Achievements and Performance in 2016-17

The year started with East Stories, a holiday storytelling workshop at the Brady Centre in Tower Hamlets for local children aged 6-9, ending with a performance for family and friends. This was part of an Arts Council funded project to expand our East storytelling project and test some new ideas.

Also supported by this grant was the launch of the East Archive. Although the project is ongoing, and we continue to add stories to the archive, we used our funding to film most of the material from our past performances and create a searchable online collection. This was formally launched at Rich Mix, Bethnal Green, in May.

A smaller group from the East project, including Shamim Azad, Sef Townsend and Paul Burgess, the three professional artists who lead it, were invited to be part of Boi-Lit Festival, the annual Bangla Literature Festival at Rich Mix. This included an interactive performance for children and a retelling of the story of the Trojan War, as part of an exploration of the the links between Valmiki's Ramayan and Homer's Iliad.

Part of the funding was set aside for developing new ideas, and one of these is a woodland walk project with Dan Cox. Dan is a musician, writer, guide and founder of The Brightwood Project, which uses woodland activities to support people in mental distress. We ran a pilot walk for an invited audience and got a lot of constructive, helpful feedback.

We were invited by Tower Hamlets
Council to run a storytelling tent at A Great Day Out, the council's flagship family event in Victoria Park. Shamim Azad, Sef Townsend and Paul Burgess shared stories, poems, songs and some instrumental music with a diverse range of families from across the borough.

We also continued to develop The Radical History Project (working title), with an R&D at Theatre Delicatessen's temporary rehearsal space in Docklands. The project has also now been joined by a freelance producer, Maeve O'Neill.

Chris Luffingham, who has been on the board of Daedalus since it gained formal company status in 2010 and its chair since 2015, stepped down to pursue other projects. Huge thanks to him for playing such a key role in Daedalus's development. He was replaced as chair by Chris White. Two new trustees joined this year: Alia Alzougbi and Mark Bixter, both of who bring a great deal of valuable expertise and experience to the board.

More on our work can be seen at www.daedalustheatre.co.uk.

Plans for Future Periods

Looking ahead to 2017-18 and beyond, we aim to finish development on The Radical History Project (working title), getting it as far as its first public performances by spring 2018, with some touring in 2018-19. We also hope to develop a participation programme to run alongside it, and have plans to do this in conjunction with Queen Mary, University of London in early 2018. We will also continue to develop the woodland walk project.

We will continue to expand the East Archive, support our East community members, and run workshops. We hope to develop further our partnerships with Rich

Mix, Ovalhouse, Queen Mary, University of London and Tower Hamlets council. We will also finalise a business development plan before the end of 2017.

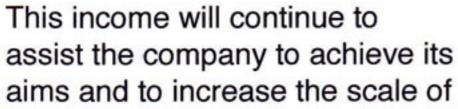

Financial Review

The financial statements of the company for the year ended 31 March 2017 are attached to this report and are prepared in accordance with statutory requirements and the requirements of the Articles. The principal elements of the financial statements are explained below.

Income

The company has occasional grants from various sources as well as a small stream of income from donations and workshops. Income from grants was £490 (the final installment of an Arts Council grant from 2015-16) and from donations was £943. £1300 was earned in fees, through work for London Borough of Tower Hamlets and Bishwo Shahitto Kendro (organisers of the Boi-Lit festival) its work over time, although further growth in income will be necessary to fund further growth in the future.

Expenditure

The company spent £4,753 in fees and other costs for its production and participation work, mainly from our 2015-16 Arts Council funding. Administrative costs were £189.

Financial Position at the Period End

There was a planned net loss in 2016-17. This came to £2,209, giving us total funds at 31 March 2017 of £2,420, of which £494 was in restricted funds.
